

AZ Town Hall visits ASU as part of road show on Arizona's Energy Future

What does Arizona's energy future look like?

JOIN THE CONVERSATION on February 2, 2012.

Panelists

Clark Miller, ASU professor and associate director of the Consortium for Science, Policy and Outcomes

Jen Fuller, Environmental Social Sciences second year ASU PhD student

Leisa Brug, Director of the Governor's Office of Energy Policy

Program Format

AZ Town Hall president, Tara Jackson, will facilitate a discussion among all participants and panelists, based on a few specific questions identified by the ASU Energy Club related to Arizona's energy future. A recorder will capture a consensus from the discussion that will be made available to participants at a later date. This interactive session is intended for students to engage in a conversation about energy as a continuation from the 99th AZ Town Hall.

More info online at www.asulightworks.com/resources/events.html

Students from all disciplines encouraged to participate.

When

Thursday, February 2, 2012

2:30 to 3:00 pm refreshments & networking

3:00 to 5:00 pm program

Where

ASU Tempe campus, Memorial Union
Ventana Room A & B

RSVP online

[http://www.aztownhall.org/
CommunityOutreachPrograms.asp](http://www.aztownhall.org/CommunityOutreachPrograms.asp)

This event is free for students.

Supporting Partners:

